AMERICAN COTTON.

The New York Herald of the 3rd inst.

Miserable weather over all of the cotton selt continues to be a big help to the future market, and speculation during the last week as been active and excited, with the volume of business and the violence of fluctuations on a par with that of 1903. Prices at the close on a par with that of 1903. Prices at the close of the week are decidedly higher and sentiment even more bullish than at the beginning of the advance, and there seems to be searcely anything in the situation to warrant any more of a decline than would naturally come through the influence of liquidation for profits. Crops reports have been the poorest ever experienced at this time of year and well they might be considering recent weather for with might be, considering recent weather, for with the continuation of heavy rains and I w temperatures for a month or more could there temperatures for a month or more could there he anything other than stunted growth, insufficient cultivation, seed rotting in the ground and no chance whatever of replanting † Hence the crop is seriously late and in immediate need of phenomenally good weather, and if this fails to materialize at once, continuing so for a protracted period, there will very likely be a preponderance of opinion to the effect that relations between supply and demand will become so strained as to warrant famine prices.

Already fears of a very moderate crop are in the ascendency, and as there have been no evidences as yet of a falling off in the consumptive demand commensurate with the indicated smallness of the yield, it is only natural that the feeling with regard to the future course of prices should be optimistic in the extraver. The next sense incomparity course. the extreme. The most sensational reports come from the northern half of the belt and the best from the northern half of the belt and the best from the south-west, but even these are as bad as what would be considered the best in what is commonly known as a normal season, and so, taking it altogether, the average condition is believed to be far below half way favorable. In view of all this it is not to be wondered at that bull speculation has been on the ram-page with prices advancing one half cent per pound on one day and showing a net rise for the week of nearly fifty points on new crom pound on one day and savering the week of nearly fifty points on new crop deliveries, even after a decline of an average twenty-five points from the best.

The trade generally is looking

The trade generally is looking for a very w condition figure to-morrow and a possible crease in the acreage to be cultivated. It decrease in the acreage to be cultivated. It has been prepared to a certain extent by the receipt of several private reports during the week, all of which, while varying considerably, were nevertheless pessimistic enough as the condition of the crop toward the last of May was reported to be anywhere from 78 to 63.4, and as the latter figure came from a source usually very close to the official figure its significance was all the greater.

There are those, however, who sooff at the significance was all the greater.

There are those, however, who scoff at the great mass of calamitous advices, arguing that exaggeration is being resorted to and that if the actual facts were known, higher crop ideas would be entertained; moreover, they assert that the acreage is still a matter of doubt and that a return of favorable farming conditions incident with the prevailing high level of prices would induce a heavy increase, if late, in the planted area. But even so it is a well known fact that in time past a large acreage has produced less cotton than a small one, proving that the season is the real arbiter of the yield. Of course if the season is such as to allow an outturn of one-half bale per acre, several million acres will make a tremendous difference, but if the weather is bad and the land does not produce as it ought to, several million acres will not make such a great deal of difference. rices would induce a heavy increas of difference.

In the bumper crop year the average yield was close on to two hundred and thirty pounds, and last season it could not have been such a great deal less, but what a difference there was in the seasons themselves as compared to what the cotton belt has had to contend with thus far! Take Texas, for instance. That state on the whole is supposed to be in the most promising condition, especially in the southern portions, but it is very cially in the southern portions, but it is very cially in the sonthern portions, but it is very hard to believe that a cotton crop can make good progress in the face of cloudbursts, hail-storms and abnormally low temperatures. As a case in point, take Ellis county, the most productive county in the state, situated in the black land country. This particular section has had torrential rains during the last few days and these have come after only a short interval of sunshine. As a result mail advices to parties outside of New York lay great stress on the uneveness of stands, the water soakel on the unevenness of stands, the water soaked ondition of the soil and the atter impossibility of getting into the fields to give the plant the ary cultivation.

s sort of talk is not taken at its face

This This sort of talk is not taken at its face value by the trade at large, as speculation is always sceptical of anything save good reports and therefore refuses to be conplaints of about the same ilk—Southern Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, and the Memphis district are especially insistent in their claims of irretrievable, descript by season of the value and the same illuments. cially insistent in their claims of irretrievable damage by reason of the rain and cold. In addition, cotton seed is said to be scarcer and dearer. In a few words, the situation is just this:—The season is one of the latest on record instead of being one of the earliest, as was expected along in March and April, and the weather is still dubious. Spot cotton is in good demand and in small supply; the demand for goods, while spasmodic in some lines, is very good on the spasmodic in some lines, is very good on the whole and the statistical position not bearish. Prices, however, look high, considering what Frices, nowever, look high, considering what they were less than two months ago, but they have been much higher and the majority opinion now is that unless inconceivable im-provement shortly takes place in crop condi-tions speculative values will show further heavy tions speculative values will show further neary advances.

Manipulation is conspicuously absent at the moment and the idea is that the July delivery has served its purpose in so far as it will justified to form a basis for bearish operations in later deliveries, although there are fears that July will have to bear the brunt of the May deal, or in other words, heavy tenders will be made on the former month. At the same time it is regarded as significant that very heavy short lines of new crops were covered toward the end of the week, and at any vered toward the end of the week, and at any rate a big weather market will be but little affected by purely local conditions. New York has a fairly large stock of cotton, but if reports concerning supplies in the southern interior are at all correct, the chances are that cotton held in this market will be industriously sought after before a very great while. Furthermore, if such changes should be made in the New York contract as to discourage shipments here to this port, and if in addition to this the crop is a late one, there is apparently very little is a late one, there is apparently very little danger of a burdensome accumulation. The outlook seems to be bullish.

Miss Lyda Osman, always an idol of the gods, is more energetic and delightful than ever, and Miss Pina Carnio is also deserving of special mention as a comediente. The Barberis are two excellent Italian duettists, and Miss Gabrielys makes good use of a very fine xoice. Final. lys makes good use of a very fine voice. THE FINANCIAL CRISIS.

EFFECT ON LAND

The deputation of the Alexandria Stock and Shareholders Association had an interview with Sir Eldon Gorst yesterday afternoon. Sir Eldon stated that he was following: the crisis with great attention. We understand that no proposals of a very practical character ensued from the meeting.

An advance to meet the immediate necessities of the Cassa di Sconto e di Risparmio has been made by the Anglo-Egyptian Bank and the Imperial Ottoman Bank. It is now confidently hoped the difficulties of the bank will be surmounted.

The excitement in regard to the position of sidently hoped the difficulties of the bank will be surmounted.

The excitement in regard to the position of the Cassa di Sconto e di Risparmio should now subside and, although for some time the situation of the bank was grave in the extreme, owing to the withdrawals, the crisis appears to have been averted. Chevalier Giacomo Rimini sub-manager of the branch of the Union Bank at Trieste, who was summoned from Europe, arrived here yesterlay, and after an examination of the situation of the Cassa, sent a telegram to the head office at Vienna wherein he asked that liberal assistance should be given in order to tide over the difficulties.

The only class of land, which has been affected by the crisis, is suburban building land. Land in the cities has not been influenced at all, as can be proved by the fact that rents not only keep up but are rising. Prices in the suburbs in the immediate neighbourhood of the big cities have been only slightly influenced for the worse in comparison with the serious depreciation of the so-called building lands in the outlying suburbs of Alexandria and Cairo. For example speculation has been buy at Mandara, and the present building lands in the outlying suburbs of Alexandria and Cairo. For example speculation has been busy at Mandarn, and the present holders of land there have been badly hit. The same tale is to be told at Cairo, where an enormous quantity of land in the further suburbs has been the subject of keen speculation, for which it is now difficult to find purchasers at very reduced prices. The most hopeful sign of the times is the purchasing power of the fellaheen who are ever most eager to buy real property in agricultural districts at high prices.

There could be no surer proof of the very restricted area embraced by the financial crisis. It has only affected the small fraction of the population, European and native, who come within the radius of the Bourse. The voiceless millions of the fellaheen population were never more prosperous, and they have been absolutely untouched by the present depression. It is into their hands that the gold, which has been flowing into Egypt, has come, and as their only ambition is to buy land or to board, they remain aloof from the disasters which have overtaken the speculative fraction of the population of Egypt. Happy fellaheen! O fortunatos minium, etc.

The Bulletin of the French Chamber of Commerce at Alexandria writing on the financial crisis remarks:—"One must not lose sight of the fact that the actual price of cotton for November is twenty dollars the cantar, and it is estimated that if nothing happens to spoil the harvest the crop will be in no way inferior to that of last year, namely 7,000,000 cantars, whilst the cultivated area has been largely increased. It is evident therefore, that if the price of 20 dollars is maintained, the returns will total at least 700,000,000 francs.

ENGLAND IN EGYPT.

FEELING IN TURKEY.

(Gazette's Special Serv

Constantinople, correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" says that people there are convinced that England, for various reasons, can neither leave Egypt nor declare a protectorate without grave complications and possibly conflicts ensuing. The Sultan, while never allowing that he is pleased with the compation, has resigned himself to it, while a protectorate would be most distasteful to him, as he would then lose the feeling of suzerainty, which satisfies him. He is now tranquil in feeling that England upholds his prestige. England ooild only end the occupation when she could be certain that her interests and those of Egypt could not be jeopardised by her withdrawal. Any way that day is too far distant to be thought of seriously at present.

EGYPT'S TRADE

STILL ON THE UP GRADE.

SATISFACTORY RETURNS.

A very remarkable proof of how partial is the existing crisis in the money markets of Alexandria and Cairo on the general well being of the country, is to be seen from the returns of the Customs Administration for last month. The figures for May are most satisfactory and clearly demonstrate that however acute the crisis may be it has not affected Egypt generally, for the ever advancing prosperity of the country cannot be retarded.

The total imports in May amounted to L.E. 1,995,039 as against L.E. 1,897,123 for the corresponding month last year, an increase of L.E. 291,16. The exports show nearly a quarter of a million increase. The total amounted to L.E. 1,567,111 as compared with L.E. 1,342,663, or an increase of L.E. 292,448.

The total imports from the beginning of this year to the 31st inst come to L.E. 10,394,031 against L.E. 8,867,666 for the corresponding five months of last year. The total increase in value therefore is L.E. 1,526,365. The exports during the same period tell an equally satisfactory tale. They totalled L.E. 12,061,658 as compared with L.E. 10,214,072 for the same time in 1906, an increase of L.E. 1,847,586. During the first five months of this year therefore Egypt's exports have increased in value by a million and three quarters, and the imports by a million and three quarters, which they are divided by the Customs Administration, show an increase. The following are the total increase in the various classes of imports, as compared with the returns of the first five months of last year:—

ALEXANDRIA'S NEW PIER.

A DRUNKEN AFFRAY.

On Sunday evening about 9 o'clock two Swiss, both German subjects, were seated at the Flasch Brasserie in an advanced state of intoxication, when two Italians, in company with ladies, seated themselves at an adjoining table. The Swiss showed great want of respect to the ladies who were with the Italians, and these latter naturally resented the insults, the result being that a general melée took place and chairs, glasses, etc., were soon flying in all directions. Suddenly one of the Italians produced a rator and aimed a vicious blow at one of the Swiss, named Pranz Passinger, the blow taking effect in the abdomen and causing injuries of a very serious nature. MISS DE MORGAN.

MISS DE MORGAN.
Miss Mary Augusta de Morgan, Directress of the Reformatory for Arab Girls at Helouan, who died recently at Cairo, after a brief illness, belonged to a remarkable family, and was herself a woman of unusual gifts of character and intellect. She was the daughter of Augustus De Morgan, the celebrated mathematician, and the nices of Campbell De. Morgan and stage of the Middless Hospital, and a man of the first eminence in his profession. Her mother, sophia Elizabeth Frend, had been brought up in the circle of philosophic reformers, who exercised such immense influence over English thought and life in the earlier part of last century, and as a girl knew Coleridge, Lamb, and Blake. For 20 years after her husband's death Mrs. De Morgan's house in Cheynerow, where she was the near neighbour as well as the intimate friend of Carlyle, was a meeting-place for many friends, men of science and of letters, artists, reformers, and philanthropists. Miss De Morgan inherited from both parents very considerable literary power, as well as singular nobility of character and great social aptitude. As a writer she is best known by two volumes of stories, "On a Pincushion" (1877) and "The Necklace of the Princess Fioriwonde" (1880), which are of very distinguished quality, and have been the delight of more than one generation of children. She was also the author of a novel, "A Choice of Chance" (1887), and more recently of another volume of stories, "The Wind Pairies" (1900), besides several other minor works, including a short life of her mother, prefixed to the interesting volume of "feminiscences," published after Mrs. de Morgan's death in 1895. It was, however, by her personality rather than her writings that he was known and endeared to a large circle of friends in all ranks of life. She had as genius from first to last for making and keeping friends. With young people, in particular, she had an influence which came partly of her humour, kindness, and good sense, and at heart of their own age. But older men and women also found in her an intelligent sympathizer and a loyal comrade. She was one of the closest friends of William Morris, whom she nursed in his last illness. For many years she was an ardent social worker among girls in the East-end of London. Her health had for long been delicate, and in the autumn of 1905 she went to Egypt, where circumstances led to her settl the reinventor in modern times of lustred pottery, and the author of the novel "Joseph Vance," is her only surviving brother. is her only surviving brother

AN EGYPTOLOGIST'S IDEAS.

Professor Flinders Petrie, the eminent Egyp Professor Flinders Petrie, the eminent Egyptologist, is about to give the public the benefit of his ideas on some problems of the modern world in a book shortly to be published by Messrs. Constable under the the title of "Janus in Modern life." The book is a development in some measure from his recent Huxley lecture, and it deals with questions of race and immigration, communism, philanthropy, and individualism in relation to historical philosophy, from a thoroughly modern point of view. Vistas are opened up in various directions, and emphasis is given to the position of our world at the parting of the ways, severing us from phasis is given to the position of our world at the parting of the ways, severing us from one set of opportunities, rendering us liable to another set of penalties. Can we circumvent any of these dangers I Professor Petrie's book is full of keen observation and comment, and such deductions as he draws from the past are keenly applicable to the present.

NOTES ET CRITIQUES

Le Caire, Lundi 17 Juin.

Le taux de l'escompte libre à Londres, que nous avions laissé à 3 3/4, s'est élevé successivement vandredi passé à 3 7/8 et samedi à 4 pour cent, soit en hausse de 1/4.

Au Stook Exchange, le Consolidé anglais a baissé avant-hier de 1/8 à 83 7/8. L'Unifiée est rémontée de 1/4 à 104 1/4. La National Bank a encore perdu 1/4 de livre à 19 1/2, de même que la Daïra Sanieh à 13 1/4. L'Agricole a regagné 1/4 à 7 3/4. La Delta Light a également repris 3/8 à 9 1/2.

lement repris 3/8 à 9 1/2.

A Paris, le Crédit Foncier Egyptien a encore reculé de 5 francs à 684 et la Banque d'Aes de 6 francs à 116.

Ici, le marché a repris, ce matin, une phy onomie convenable, sinon tout à fait régulière. La séance a bien encore été ouverte par un discours, mais court et nullement dans le un discours, mais court et nullement dans le genré de ceux qui avaient marqué les journées de jeudi et vendredi derniers. De plus, ce speech a été officiel, prononcé par le président intérimaire de l'honorable Corporation des agents de change. Sur un ton onctueux et paterne, M. Paul Oziol a engagé ces messieurs de la corbeille à ne pas se laiser influencer par les nouvelles pessimistes répandees par les baissiers sur le compte d'une Société foncière et d'un établissement de banque, nouvelles que le président de la Corporation a déclarées positivement fausses. M. Paul Oziol a terminé sa harangue par quelques bonnes paroles prêchant la concorde et l'union, voire la "coopération à l'œuvre commune."

la concorde et l'unon, voire la "cooperation a l'œuvre commune."

Nous allions oublier de dire que, d'ordre du Comité, la durée des séances a été fixée à une heure, au lieu d'une demie. Toutes les opérarations pratiquées sont de nouveau enregistrées. Les teneurs de carnet ont été finalement exclus de la corbeille jusqu'à nouvel ordre, etc. atc.

etc., etc.

Tontes ces décisions sont diversement commentées: Reconnaissons "qu'elles n'émeuvent profondément personne, par suite de leur caractèré fébrile. L'opinion prévaut, d'ailleurs, que le Comité prend décidément trop de mesures hâtives. Le calme et la circonspection ne sauraient nuire à auceun interêt, pas même à ceux de la respectable Corporation. Il faudrait autant que possible s'attacher à ne pas reservindre la liberté des transactions, à ne pas tomber dans l'arbitraire et laisser les choses suivre leur cours naturel, d'autant plus que le fond de baisse est presque atteint et qu'en outre la crise ne frappe plus uniquement les Bourses du Caire et d'Alexandrie, mais s'étend à tous les marchés étrangers.

Le nombre des transactions enregistrées a été de 64. La National Bank a clôturé à 19 1/2-9/16 après avoir fait 19 5/8. L'Agricole s'est tenue à 7 5/8-11/16. La Cassa di Sconto a été ramenée à 100 l'action ancienne et 110 la nouvelle, la Banque d'Athènes à 122, la Banque d'Orient à 120.

Le Crédit Foncier a été délaissé à 700 ; les obligations à lots anciennes sont revenues à 20 et les nouvelles à 268-269. La Daria a n'é. Toutes ces décisions sont diversement com

La Delta Land a été bien tenue à 2. Les Estates ont clôturé à £ 1. Les Constructions sont revenues à 0 7/16 et les Oasis à 0 7,16-1/2.

Nous détachons d'une correspondance de ondres, en date du 9 Juin, le passage

"La situation du marché monétaire n'est pas satisfaisante. On remarque trop d'exportations d'or, et l'argent au lendemain est cher et difficile. Les Banques "ramassent ", à Paris surtout, par suité de la tournure inquiétante que prennent "La saires de Russie.

"Au Stock Echange, les transactions sont presque nulles en présence de la cherté de largent. Les capitalistes en quête de placements continuent à rester à l'écart; seuls les baissiers sont en plein dans leur dément. L'inquiétade et le malaise sont partout; on s'attend à une bien mauvaise liquidation et à des chutes provoquées par les récentes faillites."

Sr. Petersburg, June 17.

The new law strengthens the representation of intelligent classes in electoral assemblies and reduces the number of the unintelligent. It is hoped by this means to diminish the number of meducated members of the Duma and to introduce more already experienced in local government. Each class elects only its own particular members, thus peasants and workmen cannot be represented by outside agitators, as at present.

Elections have been suspended in the Turkestan steppes and Yakutak territory. Only seven cities will be allowed independent representation, instead of 19 as before. (Reuter) St. Petersburg, June 17.

PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "EGYPTIAN GAZETTI

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "EXPIPLIAN GAZETTE".

Dear Sir,—It seems to me and to others, who live anywhere within hearing, of this establishment at Boulac, that the word "Prevention" might well he left out of the name of the place. What is done to the unfortunate dogs when they get there, dogs being among the few animals who do not suffer silently; and the cries and distressing howlings that go no for hours, is extremely disturbing. As a member of this society, which is supposed to try and prevent cruelty to beasts, I think that the matter should be looked into, and something the matter should be looked into, and something should be done, to make the life of these dogs (many of them pets) during the time they wait for death, less painful to them, than i apparently is—or else the name of the place apparently is—of their imprisor else the name of the pla ent, had better be change Thanking you for sparing me a little space in your paper.

POLICE DOG SÉRVICE.

To the Editor of the "Egyptian Gazette.

To the Editor of the "Eavitan Gazette."

Dear Sir, — I should like to thoroughly endorse every word of Canis Major's letter which appears in your columns to day. A friend of mine suffered exactly the same experience with regard to his dog, the other day. He was still more unfortunate, for after three days' frantic struggle with amazing red tape and imbeelilty he recovered his dog only in time to die of disease contracted in the black hole of Boulac in which the poor animal had been confined.

Yours truly, Loven of Animals. Cairo, June 15th, 1907

CYPRUS NOTES.

THE GREEK NATIONALISTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

Nicosia, June 10th

All Cyprus has been in a state of great excitement owing to the case brought by the Limassol Police against a number of Cyprio Greeks of that port. The question at issue was utterly insignificant, but in this happy island we are so at a loss for interesting events that it has been magnified to such a degree that it has developed into a political manifestation of the first magnitude The details of the case deserve recounting, as they illustrate the political ideals of a noisy portion of the populace On the Name Day of the King of the Hellenes treat iteas of a noisy portion of the populace.

On the Name Day of the King of the Hellenes, a number of Cypriots got together in one of the alleys of Linassol with the object of discharging some mortars filled with powder in honour of the occasion. The lane was crowded with a nondescript rabble, which included many children. The Inspector of Police, Yousbashi Televanton, who is a Greek, had received certain complaints just before, as some people were alarmed, for on another occasion one of the mortars had exploded and had hurt one of the onlookers. He accordingly repaired to the scene and asked the man, who was discharging these instruments, to go to a more lonely spot, as they were usually fired off in the outskirts of the town. The man was about to comply when the inspector departed. He was, however, summoned back as he was told that it was determined to discharge the mortar on the spot. The spectra departed. He was moveder, summoned back as he was told that it was determined to discharge the mortar on the spot. The Yousbash in order to prevent any accident, ordered the mortars to be removed, which was done. Half an hour later he was stopped while walking with his wife by a local Greek advocate, a schoolmaster and the editor of a local paper. These three persons declared to Yousbashi Televantou that he had no business to interfere as it was a political matter and that the honour of Greece was at stake, for it was necessary to celebrate King George's Name Day in this manner. As it was useless to argue, the officer was about to King George's Name Day in this manner. As it was useless to argue, the officer was about to leave them when they began to hiss. He was followed by the men for some distance but got to his home. The excited conduct of these patriots had attracted considerable attention and their conduct was much commented on. It was thought that this storm in a tea cup would have ended there, but the Greek local newspapers determined not to let the matter drop. They waxed most eloquent over the insult offered to Hellenism because the mortars had not been suffered to be discharged without interference from the police. They declared that the sacred idea of the union of Cyprus with Greece in that go ference from the police. They declared that the sed to had been thereby brutally violated, etc., tec Long discussions ensued in the Greek etc Long discussions ensued in the Greek had it place in the place in the place anged. The place in disturbance, insulting the officer, and firing off an action against the three men for creating a disturbance, insulting the officer, and firing off mortars in a public place and the advocate, the schoolmaster and the editor were cited as defendants. The police officer was declared by the patriotic party to have offered an insult to the Greek flag by his conduct. To show their sympathy they went in masses to the quay to say farewell to the three defendants on their departure by boat for Famagusta on their way to Nicosia, where the case was to be tried. On the arrival of the steamer at Famagusta a large crowd gathered that port to greet the defendants. Greek flags were waved and the Mayor of Famagusta at that port to greet the defendants. Greek flags were waved and the Mayor of Famagusta user day. sacred idea of the union of Cyprus with Greece delivered an impassioned harangue on the subject of the union of Cyprus with Greece When the train arrived at Nicosia with the when the train arrived at vincosia with the advocate, the school master, the editor and their faithful hangers-on, who had accompanied them all the way from Limassol, another scene of enthusiasm took place on the platform. The case was heard on the 5th inst.

another scene of enthusiasm took place on the platform. The case was heard on the 5th inst. and the advocate was ordered to pay a fine of 10s and £24 15s costs, while his partners in the affair were acquitted. The defendants and their followers returned to Limassol on the 7th inst. in a very excited state. The advocate and his friends went about the town yelling, "Long Live the Union with Greece," and a mob followed them re-echoing the same refrain. The crowd screamed before the house of one of the wintesses on behalf of the officer and smashed two of the windows, all the while crying for "Union with Greece."

The case has aroused considerable comment, as it shows the extraordinary attitude of a section of the Cypriot Greeks. All Greeks of common-sense in the island, however much they may sympathise with the idea of political union with Athens, are quite averse to such ridiculous manifestations. The noisy and factious "Patriots," as these enthusiasts call themselves, have aroused general ridicule by their scoduct and heave for the faction. themselves, have aroused general ridicule by their conduct, and have afforded the Moslem population an unfortunate exhibition of Greek population at minortunate exhibition of three factionsness, for every sane person recognises that it would be a colossal misfortune for the island if it ever ceased to be under British

PALESTINE IN LONDON.

AN AMBITIOUS EXHIBITION.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Palestine Exhibition, which was opened at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, to-day by the Bishop of London, with the patronage of H. R. H. Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, and many of the Bishops and distinguished laymen, represents an ambitions attempt on the part of the London Society for promoting Christianity among the Jews, to stimulate among Londoners a more practical interest in the work of Christianising Israel, No better means of drawing public attention to that work could well be conceived. The idea is to enable those who have never visited Palestine to gain a more intimate knowledge Palestine to gain a more intimate knowledge of the country, and its many interesting characteristics, than can be obtained from books and pictures, and the scheme has been developed along elaborate lines by the Rev.

conareceristics, train can be obtained from books and pictures, and the scheme has been developed along elaborate lines by the Rev. Samuel Schor, who is a converted Jew, and a native of Jerusalem. There are many features of interest, which are calculated to afford instruction not merely to those who have never travelled in Palestine, but also to those who have seen many of the things herein described, but who have not had the advantage of a trustworthy explanation of points of detail.

The exhibition is divided into eleven principal sections, describing, among other things, native industries at work, in a real Jerusalem street; full size representations of the "Three-fold homes of the people": a Bedouin encampment; a Bethauy home; and the "House of "Phree-fold homes of the people": A field is improvised, and the farmer is seen at work with his yoke of oxen. There are also a number of valuable models, one of which depicts Jerusalem as it appeared in the time of the Saviour. The model took 25 years to construct, occupies a space of 144 square feet, and is said to contain a million pieces of wood dovetailed together. Another very interesting feature is a gigantic raised map of Palestine, made under the supervision of Mr. Armstrong, Secretary of the Palestine Exploration Fund. Other striking oxhibits are the life-size tabernacle; Herod's glorious second temple, the Roman judgement court, with the "Pavement" made on an ancient Roman design; and the Jewish Synagogue.

Synagogue.

To the lovers of art, the picture gallery will be a great attraction. This contains no less than 400 original paintings and drawings of Pal-estine scenes and sacred subjects by modern artists, and includes exhibits by J. S. Sargent, artists, and includes exhibits by J. S. Sargent, R. A., and Harold Copping.

In connection with the exhibition there are demonstrations of oriental scenes, wedding customs in the east, Jewish religious ceremonies, also lectures by such well-known men as Sir Charles Warren, Sir Röbert Anderson, the Rev. Canon McCormick, Professor Johns, Archdeacon Sinclair, and Professor Henslow.

The exhibition will remain open until July 2nd.
